OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC

SUBJECT: Registry of Waste Disposal Sites in Wisconsin:

As a part of the continuing efforts of the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to serve the citizens of this state, the DNR maintains and routinely publishes a comprehensive listing of all known solid and hazardous waste sites in the State. This information has recently been updated and is contained in the enclosed report, entitled "Registry of Waste Disposal Sites in Wisconsin." The Registry, which was last updated in 1993, now includes a total of 4,299 sites.

The Registry was created by the DNR to serve as a comprehensive listing of all sites where solid or hazardous wastes have been or may have been deposited. Inclusion of a site on the Registry is not intended to suggest that environmental problems have occurred, are occurring, or will occur in the future. Its intended purpose is to serve as an informational tool for the public, as well as local and state officials, regarding the location of waste disposal sites in Wisconsin.

While the Registry is informational in nature, it should be noted that the DNR also maintains two other lists of contamination sites. These two lists provide information with respect to the environmental significance of certain sites in Wisconsin. The DNR maintains these lists of sites, as required by the Wisconsin Legislature, in Chapter 292 of the Wisconsin Statutes. The first list, entitled the "Wisconsin Remedial Response Site Evaluation Report" (which includes "The Inventory of Sites or Facilities Which May Cause or Threaten to Cause Environmental Pollution") was published in December of 1991. The second list, the "Hazard Ranking List", establishes a list of sites which pose a "substantial danger" to the public or the environment. The "Hazard Ranking List" was last published in July 1994.

It is our hope at the DNR that publications such as the Registry will provide useful information to the public. Information on obtaining any of these three documents is contained in the enclosed publication. If you have questions about specific sites or facilities listed in any of these publications, you should direct your questions to the appropriate DNR Regional Remediation and Redevelopment Team Supervisor, which are designated on the map shown on the inside back cover of this report.

Sincerely,

Mark F. Giesfeldt, Director

ORIGIN OF THE REGISTRY

In 1984, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) performed an exhaustive search for abandoned waste disposal sites in Wisconsin, as mandated by the legislature. The results of this effort were published in a DNR report entitled "Locating and Repairing Abandoned Waste Sites." In 1988, the list was updated and published as "Active and Abandoned Landfills in Wisconsin." Since it was first compiled in 1984, the number of sites as well as the type of sites included on the list has grown. Based on this information, the 1990 update to the list was published as "The Registry of Waste Disposal Sites In Wisconsin" to more accurately reflect the growing diversity of sites contained in this publication.

Today's "Registry" update includes a total number of 4,299 sites. The sites contained in the Registry were identified from a number of sources. A major source of information was the DNR list of registered landfills in the State. Another source of information was from sites that obtain one-time demolition disposal permits. The DNR's regional staff also contributed information to the Registry by identifying unlicensed or abandoned facilities. In addition, newspapers and the public have also provided valuable information to the State on site activities.

PURPOSE OF THE REGISTRY

The Registry is DNR's "master list" of known solid and hazardous waste disposal sites in Wisconsin. The list includes active, inactive, and abandoned sites where solid or hazardous wastes were known, or likely to have been disposed. The inclusion of a site on the Registry does not mean that environmental contamination has occurred, is occurring, or will occur in the future. The Registry is intended to serve as a general informational source for the public, and State, and local officials, as to the location of waste disposal sites in Wisconsin.

USERS OF THE REGISTRY

The potential users of the Registry who may benefit from the information contained in it, include:

1. well driller's (to advise them of any disposal sites in areas where they may be drilling water supply wells);
2. regional planning agencies;

3. environmental auditors;
4. county Assessors, Registrars of Deeds, etc.;
5. various state agencies, such as: DNR programs; State Historical Society; Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection; Department of Health and Family Services; Wisconsin Geological and Natural History Survey; and
6. other interested persons.

ORGANIZATION OF THE REGISTRY

In order to find a site in the Registry, the user will first need to determine in which of the seventy-two counties the site is located. The back side of the Registry includes a map of the state's counties as well as the five DNR geographic regions. Once the county is known, the sites can then be found alphabetically by county, town/city, and then site name. The full Registry database includes additional fields and can be obtained from the Bureau's website listed in the final section of this introduction.

The type of information contained in the Registry is organized by categories in tabular format. The categories in the Registry include:

County: This column identifies the Wisconsin county in which the disposal site is located.

DNR Region: This column identifies the DNR region where the disposal site is located (a map is located on the inside of the back cover). The five DNR regions are:

NER Northeast Region
 NOR Northern Region
 SCR South Central Region
 SER Southeast Region
 WCR West Central Region

Town/City: The name of the city, village, or township where the site is located.

Site or Facility Name: The DNR-assigned name of the site or facility (e.g. property owner, license holder, generator or disposer of waste.)

Legal Description: This column identifies the geographic location of the site. The five entries for geographic or legal description are, from left to right:

- quarter or half of a quarter section
- quarter or half section
- section number
- township (north)
- range (east or west)

Address: Mailing address or street address

FID Number: DNR Facility Identification Number

RELATIONSHIP OF THE “REGISTRY” TO THE “WRRSER” AND “HAZARD RANKING” LISTS

It is important to briefly discuss the relationship of the Registry to the two other lists maintained by the DNR, as mentioned in the Open Letter of this publication. The DNR maintains three separate, yet related lists of waste disposal sites in Wisconsin: the “Registry of Waste Disposal Sites In Wisconsin”; the “Wisconsin Remedial Response Site Evaluation Report (WRRSER), formerly known as “Inventory of Sites or Facilities Which May Cause or Threaten to Cause Environmental Pollution”; and the “Hazard Ranking List.”

These lists are part of a process mandated by the Wisconsin Legislature to identify and screen sites according to their environmental and human health significance. The objective of this screening process is to provide the State with a list of sites which pose a “substantial danger.” This process assists state and federal officials in establishing clean-up priorities for contaminated disposal sites in Wisconsin. It also assists in determining which sites are eligible to receive state funds for cleanup if the responsible parties or federal funding is unavailable.

The first step in the screening process is to determine if a site warrants inclusion on the WRRSER. Candidate sites for inclusion on the WRRSER are drawn mainly from the “Registry” and the federal Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Information System (CERCLIS), although sites are also identified from other sources (i.e. the list of active Leaking Underground Storage Tanks and the Spills Report). These candidate sites, which are determined to be “high potential” sites by the DNR are evaluated based on environmental criteria promulgated by the DNR in Chapter NR 710, Wisconsin Administrative Code. If a site meets the specific conditions established by the criteria (i.e. that it may cause or threaten to cause environmental pollution) it may be placed on the inventory of the Remedial Response Report. In 1987, when the original inventory was published, 165 sites met this threshold.

The next step in this process involves “hazard ranking” the sites to determine if the site poses a “substantial danger” to the public health or welfare, or to the environment. The criteria for making this determination was promulgated in Chapter NR 710. The DNR modeled this criteria closely on the original federal Hazard Ranking System, established to screen sites for federal clean-up actions. The candidate sites for hazard ranking are drawn mainly from the inventory portion of WRRSER.

If a site is hazard ranked and it scores 15 or more, it is considered to pose a “substantial danger” and is placed on the Hazard Ranking List. Sites on this list are then eligible for state clean-up funds if the responsible parties or federal funds are not available. The first hazard ranking was conducted in 1988, when 62 sites from the Inventory were hazard ranked. Of these, 60 sites met or exceeded the threshold for the “substantial danger” definition. The results of this ranking were compiled in the DNR publication “Hazard Ranking List,” published in March, 1988, and updated July, 1994.
